

For Immediate Release

For additional information contact:
Barbara Lothian at 847-657-7900

Thoelecke to write for This Old House

April 7, 2003, Glenview, IL—Tim Thoelecke, Jr., president of Garden Concepts was hired by Bittersweet Communications in Burlington, Vermont to write and edit portions of an upcoming book by This Old House.

Entitled This Old House Landscaping, the book is the first book produced by the well-known home improvement giant. In the spirit of other This Old House ventures, the book will be not only a practical "how-to" book, but it will also offer a chapter on Brainstorming, which will present creative design solutions for various landscape elements, including decks, patios, pathways, fences, lighting, water features and kids' play spaces. It is this Brainstorming chapter on which Thoelecke is focusing.

In the past, Thoelecke has consulted on and provided illustrations for a number of Sunset Books publications, is a regular contributor to Crain's Chicago Business Residential Real Estate Guide, and has written for a number of industry publications.

The work of Garden Concepts (www.gardenconceptsinc.com) has appeared in various publications, including Chicagoland Gardening, American Nurseryman, and Today's Homeowner, and Landscape Architect and Specifier News. Winner of a number of industry landscape design awards, Garden Concepts specializes in custom residential landscapes in the Chicago area and elsewhere.

Garden Concepts can be reached at 847-6547-7900.

An electronic version of this release available at www.gardenconceptsinc.com/press.